Zionists Protest Decision To Continue White Paper For Now

American Zionist leaders will meet in an emergency conference in Washington after a mass meeting of Zionists in Madison Square Garden on Sunday, September 30, as a result of word from London that the British Labor Government intended to continue the White Paper policy in Palestine with only slight modifications, the American Zionist Emergency Council announced.

A Reuters dispatch said that the Labor Cabinet was believed to have decided against Zionist demands for free immigration to Palestine and the establishment of a Jewish State. The report declared that the White Paper ban on all Jewish immigration would be modified to allow entrance to a monthly maximum of 1,500 Jews.

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver and Dr. Stephen S. Wise, co-chairmen of the American Zionist Emergency Council, declared in a joint statement that such a decision by the British Government would lead "only to a catastrophe."

"The Jews of Palestine will undoubtedly resist to the bitter end," the statement said. "They will not stand calmly by and watch the final destruction, after liberation, of the surviving remnants of their brothers and sisters in Europe. Nor will they for themselves accept the prospect of becoming ultimately a minority, tolerated or otherwise, within one of the many Arab States."

"They will have the unqualified support of Jews everywhere, as well as of those who have not closed their minds to the horrors visited on the Jews of Europe. We look to the Administration of President Truman to take immediate steps to prevent a shameful and pervasive irreparable injustice."

A spokesman for the Emergency Council said that the council's offices are at 345 Madison Avenue, New York City.

The British Government's decision to refer the whole issue of Palestine and of Jewish immigration to the United Nations Organization with a statement that this was a responsibility that all the Allies must share in common, followed the receipt by the Cabinet of President Truman's letter supporting the Jewish request for the immediate immigration of 100,000 Jews into Palestine.

British Government circles have shown considerable displeasure with the President's letter. They assert that they share all the President's sentiments in this matter.

These sources revealed that the Cabinet had proposed to President Truman that the United States should share responsibility with the British Government in settling the Palestine problem. The United States authorities have turned down this offer.

Under these circumstances, it is felt in Cabinet circles that the President's intervention in the matter has in no way changed the general situation.

It is understood, therefore, that when the British statement on Palestine is issued shortly it will make clear that no final solution is proposed and that the temporary extension of limited Jewish immigration into Palestine at the rate of 1,500 a month is a stopgap policy only until the United Nations Organization makes a decision.

Zionist leaders in Palestine were urgently summoned to meet in Jerusalem to discuss the reports of British policy on Jewish immigration.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist Organization and of the Jewish Agency, revealed in London that the agency had refused a British offer of 1,500 permits monthly for Jewish immigration into Palestine.

Dr. Weizmann said the offer was "a mere token gesture."

Terrorists In Palestine Defy British

Terrorist political activity appears to be coming to the forefront in the press at present. The small outlawed group of Zionist political extremists who are committed to violent tactics are showing their heads again.

They are taking advantage of the renewed uncertainty and mounting bitterness among the Jewish population in Palestine, caused by the virtual exhaustion of the 1939 White Paper immigrant certificates and the failure of Britain's new Labor Government so far to intimate whether it will allow large-scale admissions of displaced European Jews.

These youthful desperadoes are affixing illegal placards and pamphlets to buildings in the night, says the New York Times. They are distributing their subversive literature by means of so-called leaflet bombs — handbills packed into metal cylinders that explode in busy thoroughfares, showering these pamphlets far and wide. Nine persons were injured, two seriously, when seven such bombs exploded in various parts of Jerusalem, a couple of weeks ago.

The extremists are also beginning to smear their slogans in pitch upon stone walls and are mining road culverts, telephone poles and railway tracks as part of their demonstrations of defiance to the British authorities.

At the same time preparations were announced in Palestine for building nearly a score of Jewish villages during the coming year under the auspices of the Palestine Foundation Fund in areas that have lain desolate for many hundreds of years. These lands, which were purchased by the Jewish National Fund in the wilderness of southern Palestine where it

BUBONIC PLAGUE APPEARS IN PALESTINE

Cases of bubonic plague have appeared in several Mediterranean ports in recent months, the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration reported.

Last year, said U. N. R. R. A's epidemiological information bulletin, the Suez Canal zone experienced the worst plague epidemic in its history. Port Said and Suez were described as still infected, and cases have now appeared also at Haifa, Jaffa and Tel Aviv in Palestine, at Algiers, Malta, Ajaccio (Corsica), Tarragona and Casablanca.

Last autumn's severe epidemic at Dakar appears to have diminished in recent months, the bulletin said. In China, the publication added, the plague has been spreading inland from the ports during the war.

"Elsewhere in the world," it added, "the relatively favorable situation resulting from many years' effort has been maintained."

Dreaded Drancy Camp Near Paris Closed

Redeeming its recent pledge to liquidate concentration camps, the de Gaulle Government announced the closing of the Drancy camp near Paris, which became notorious in 1938, when the Daladier Government instituted "administrative internment." Drancy later served as a transit camp for Jews taken over by the Germans and, after the liberation, by the present Government.

U.S. Head Of W.R.B. Reviews Rescue Of Persecuted At Cost Of Millions

The United States Government was urged to take "all necessary steps to effect the reopening of Palestine for the immigration of the Jewish people by William O'Dwyer in his final report as executive director of the War Refugee Board. The board, appointed in January, 1944, consisted of the Secretaries of State, Treasury and War. General O'Dwyer has returned to New York and is a candidate for Mayor.

The report also recommended that as a matter of national policy the U.S. Government should take aggressive action at once for a United Nations solution of "the international humanitarian problem" of finding permanent homes for the non-repatriable displaced peoples. The ultimate solution of the problem, it declared, "rests primarily upon international action."

"Several million persons, including one million Jews who were the special subjects of the Nazi persecution campaign," the report said, "are still alive in Europe. Large numbers of these have been or will soon be repatriated to their countries of origin. But there will be many for whom repatriation will be either impracticable or impossible. Many others for valid and compelling reasons cannot remain where they are. Consequently, these people are homeless and permanently displaced."

The board, through its efforts, General O'Dwyer related, obtained the rescue of hundreds of thousands of persons through activities organized by the board. His report covered the major programs of rescue, relief, psychological warfare and the establishment of temporary havens of refuge, including that at Oswego, N.Y., now under the Interior Department and housing more than 900. He favored permitting them to remain in the U.S. though it was planned that they should return to their countries of origin.

However, General O'Dwyer considered the problem of "stateless" Jews the most pressing and so made his recommendation that Palestine be opened to them.

"Immediate action can and should be taken for this group," he said. "The majority of them desire to start life anew in Palestine, the only country which is ready and willing today to receive Jews in large numbers."

The report told in detail of the rescue of persecuted through the use of some $20,000,000 of private American funds, the latter mostly for food that was distributed to refugees in German concentration camps.

Jews In Latin America Number 600,000

Latin American Jews, New York City, who have just returned to the United States from a two-month speaking tour for the Joint Distribution Committee in Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay, said that the 600,000 Jews in Latin America are anxious to join with American Jews in extending relief to the persecuted Jews in Europe. Speaking at a press conference, Rabbi Louis Stein emphasized that Jewish communities south of the Rio Grande are fully cognizant of the relief and rehabilitation work carried on by the J.D.C. for the surviving Jews in Europe.

Many of the Jews who were aided 25 years ago by the J.D.C. in Eastern Europe and who are now permanent residents in South America, are contributing their time, energy and money towards the relief campaign benefiting the J.D.C. The community of refugee immigrants who came to South America in the last decade is equally aware of the role the Joint Distribution Committee is playing in bringing some measure of relief to the Jews in Europe. Many of the 150,000 Jewish immigrants now living in Latin America, who were aided by the J.D.C. in Eastern Europe, are contributing their time, energy and money towards the relief campaign benefiting the J.D.C.

THE Nicest GIFT OF ALL

FAMOUS for quality for nearly half a century, genuine "Wear-Ever" Aluminum Cooking Utensils still retain first place in the hearts of homemakers. Besides are following the lead of the older generation in their preference for these bright, quick-heating, durable utensils that cook every food better!

Lady, when you purchase aluminum cooking utensils, be doubly sure you are getting genuine "Wear-Ever". Turn the utensil over and look for the well-known "Wear-Ever" trade mark stamped on the bottom.

"Wear-Ever" UTENSILS RETAIN HEAT LONGER!

Heat spreads throughout an aluminum utensil approximately three times faster than through other commonly used metals. Heat is distributed more evenly. No hot spots or scorching. All the utensil cooks the food. For example, a quart of milk can be heated down to one-quarter pint, over low heat, without stirring and it won't scorch! In aluminum baking and roasting utensils, the spreading of heat results in beautiful, even browning. Made of ALUMINUM. "Wear-Ever" lasts longer... never rust!

All news, advertising, and pictures omitted this week due to lack of space, will be run in next week's issue.

Guiding The War Veteran Back

By SUSAN F. COHEN

Advisory Bureaus of the Rehabilitation Committee of the Canadian Jewish Congress are organized in Montreal, Toronto, and Winnipeg, in cooperation with local Jewish Branches of the Canadian Legion. In Montreal, the committee is headed by William Abrams; the executive secretary is Irving I. Berlin, and the legion branch is the Brigadier Frederick Kisch Branch #7. In Toronto, D. Lou Harris is assisted by Al. [Name] and Jewish Branch [Name]. In Winnipeg, M. A. Gray, M.P., handles both positions, working with the General Monash [Name].

These bureaus have all been organized in the largest centres of Jewish settlement and enlistment, since the problem of re-settling any veteran into the anonymity of any big city is harder than in the smaller, more closely linked communities, where their reabsorption is easier.

Mr. Harris, who is a veteran of World War I, has been active in setting up Jewish Branches of the Legion across Canada, and was instrumental in establishing the Toronto Jewish Branch; and Mr. Pearlstein, also a veteran, works for a veterans' magazine, and is now writing a book about veterans. Mr. Gray, in Winnipeg, formerly a city alderman for twenty years, is working there with the oldest Jewish Branch of the Legion in Canada.

Mr. Abrams has set up coordinating committees in Montreal. These of businessmen can advise on jobs; lawyers on legal aid; and so on. There is also the Jewish Vocational Service, under Dr. [Name], which works closely with the Advisory Bureau; and for problems, Mr. Berlin can be reached on Miss Anna Sachs, Welfare Bureau of [Name].

In Montreal, the Advisory Bureau of the Rehabilitation Committee is now at 4806 Park Avenue, in was once the Jewish Intellectual Society quarters. Parties being set up, and care are dropping sawdust on while he was being in the Canadian Jew-tive of the song-writer, although they both play the piano with one finger. He can play the trumpet and drums, which he learned as a Boy Scout, and was trumpeter at the annual pre-Yom Kippur memorial parade of the Brigadier Kisch Branch. When people ask him if he is related to the song-writer, he sometimes says he's a nephew, and they look at him and say, "Oh, you're kidding."

After he was discharged from the army, and accepted by the Congress for his present position, Mr. Berlin trained with the Department of Veterans' Affairs, and was shown official policies and techniques in handling veterans' problems, in matters of pensions, for instance, or rehabilitation credits. He explained that the Bureau receives the names of discharged Jewish army and naval personnel, and then writes to them that Mr. Berlin may be able to help them. The [Name] most advanced of [Name] rehabilitation, gives each discharged man a list of organized veterans' committees in his own community from which he may take his pick.

Both Jewish and non-Jewish servicemen and women come to the Bureau for assistance; and the most persistent question they ask is about jobs. If they do not want to go back to their pre-enlistment positions, which they are entitled by law to do, and especially if they are young people who never held jobs before enlisting, they may be advised by aptitude tests, of the Vocational Service, which is an [Name] guidance not only for [Name], but for anybody.

The second most frequent question is about how a veteran can set himself up in a new business. Most veterans are surprised to learn that they cannot get a permit for that, since none are being issued through the Department of Veterans Affairs. The nearest way the veteran can get to working by himself is in the kind of business where he is actually an agent for a large company which would supply the materials, such as running a filling-station. After that, come requests about how they can go back to school or college, about pensions, housing, hospitalization, artificial limbs, legal aid, rehabilitation grants, and welfare problems. Mr. Berlin wrote an article called "Aptitude Education" which was mimeographed shortly before V-J day and distributed by the Congress to people who are doing the same kind of work. Behind a light style, the article packs a punch, as it explains how to realize the difficulties that the veteran has been through. It urges the workers, the families and the friends to be natural, above all; not to be over-solicitous, nor to assist without a request for assistance from the veteran himself, and to have patience in helping the veteran to acquire a set of home habits while he discards the ones that he acquired in the services.

Like other counsellors, Jewish and non-Jewish, through the country, Mr. Berlin is working hard, through the turmoil of changing regulations and mental and material reconversion to peace. With the others, he is endeavoring to ensure the veterans positions in the community where they are needed, and to make them secure in the reassurance that they will not become a generation of displaced persons in these unsettled times.

FRIENDSHIP MEANS A HELPING HAND

"I hold... the harvest" said Calvert 300 years ago

EARLY in the 17th Century, Calvert, famous English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, pioneered mutual understanding between England and America by establishing colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland.

It was truly wisdom of this great pioneer, "Dr. King's" motto, "Love thy neighbor" which has been the guiding principle of the "Old World" and "New World" in the establishment of the United States of America.

The Future of the World depends on Friendship

Let us be thankful to "Canadian" for the friendship between England and the United States for the benefit of world security.

That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an anchor."

The confident and generally optimistic outlook for fall fund-raising reported by the Council Of Jewish Federations And Welfare Funds has received substantiation from the fact that the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York is drawing up a master plan which is breathtaking in all its implications. In addition to the budget of nine million dollars for one hundred and sixteen agencies, a twenty-one million dollar building fund will be raised through December by ten thousand volunteer solicitors. This goal is greater than any ever sighted before by a private philanthropy and those at the head of it express full confidence that they will attain it.

But it is not the many millions involved which make this appeal great and meaningful. It is the method of allotting the fund and the spirit and vision which had to go before the project in its organizational detail. People who give will know that something big is in view and will want to be associated with it although what will be done with much of the actual money will not be known until the results of study and survey have been sifted and are available as ground for action. Technicians and advisers will form the right hand staff of the building committee and doctors and others, some of whom have not yet returned to civilian life, will be consulted for recommendations in the expansion of hospitals and centres. Population experts will advise on whether to build now or to meet temporary needs at present locations in districts which are bound to deteriorate. Where some costs might soar for a while it might be better to wait until a future time, although the money itself is available and no building has been undertaken for twenty-five years.

The Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York will concentrate its efforts on care for the aged, child care and youth welfare, psychiatry and general medical care. There will be laboratories and clinics for work on malignant diseases; enlargement of institutions for the crippled and handicapped; the building of a centre for the study of behavior problems in children; the expansion of maternity services; and the advancement of hospitals into great institutions that lack nothing to be of the world's best.

It will all be very fine but nothing could be finer than the high, uncommon note that is struck by bold and imaginative leadership and the determination and will to serve which it is able to inspire in others when it is the real thing. The New York campaign is of a broad, generous sweep that summons men to serve fellow-men. There is courage and daring in it, befitting the year of liberation that takes a stride away from the oppressive past and challenges communities to make up for the terrible blood-letting of war and horror by practical demonstrations of the law of life: responsibility of one human being for the other. Thus Jews show that they know what they have to do. They build up and repair, conserve life and improve living, bind wounds and widen horizons, and let in more light on all the problems that keep men from gaining the full stature intended for them.

The appeal of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York will not take place until December but between then and now one thousand small meetings will be held for discussing the campaign! Here is something to arrest the attention of those who are active in appeals in the Jewish communities of Canada. Also the fact that six special pamphlets have been prepared describing the needs for which the big drive has been planned.

These things are done, obviously, on the theory that publicity and enlightenment increase participation in one way or another and enlist prospective contributors. If there was ever a time when such an undertaking belonged to a close corporation of a few opinionated and caustic owners that time has passed for the modern progressive community. The custom of coming down like a wolf on the fold at stated intervals after long periods of aloof silence to high-pressure people into giving to things they know little or nothing about, is outmoded and should take its place with other items that communities have learned not to refer to with pride. Of course, the money has to be raised but the undertaking does not have to begin and end there, and any one who believes that the old method was the only sure way belongs in the past with it.

Community leaders have a duty to keep the people informed so that they may have some idea of the needs which the community must face and how and when, on the principle that a chain is only as strong as its weakest link. Proper education of the public could establish an aristocracy of service, which is the only true one, and could knit the community together for its own betterment. Mass people would be activated in a common cause, more and younger leaders would be developed, there would be more knowledge of what it is all about, and more even more money. The general tone of the community would be raised to a level of dignity indicated by the slogan of the New York campaign: "This Is Our Moment To Dream Again, Plan Again, Build Again."

We mourn six million dead orphans, the aged, the young and the little Jewish children. We remember them.

Immortality is the theme of the Yizkor hour. It teaches that even a speck of dust does not die, or escape, all the more are we strengthened in the belief that human personality lives on, is immortal. The tale of our day teaches that our loved ones are with us in some eternal bond; that some technique and its genius to help the world make it more understandable, more vibrant.

This holy hour summons us to live like candles. It reminds us to strive to reach out for the spiritual goals which be counted for a blessing among the General Dwight D. Eisenhower participated in the Jewish Day of Atonement services in the camp for displaced persons at Feldafing, just south of Munich, and had made a brief speech to the inmates.

He told the congregation that he had come as the personal representative of President Truman and at the Chief Executive's request. The Supreme Allied Commander was accompanied by Gen. George S. Patton, commanding the Third Army and Eastern Military District; Maj. Gen. Louis A. Craig, commanding the Twentieth Corps, and other officers.

After chatting informally for some time with the rabbis conducting the service, General Eisenhower made similar brief trips to two other camps for displaced persons in the Munich area.

Vigorous protests have been voiced lately by Jewish representatives as to conditions in such camps.

Tribute to several individuals, including foreigners, was paid in the report of Ira A. Hirschmann, a New York business man, who volunteered for service in Turkey. It said:

"He had gone to Ankara early in January, 1944, for the sole purpose of investigating the possibi- lities of rendering aid to Nazi victims in the Balkans. With the wholehearted cooperation and assistance of United States Amba- sador Laurence A. Steinhardt, Mr. Hirschmann rendered outstanding and unusually successful service to the board. He returned to the United States in September, 1944, and was succeeded by his able assistant, Mr. Herbert Katsch, who had spent many years in foreign refugee relief work."

Turkey, it was explained, was the most serious bottleneck in opening the door of escape from the Balkans, but it became a great service.

Commenting on Jewish life in South America, Rabbi Lookstein said that although there appears to be a lack of religious and educational leadership in the community, the Jews in Latin America are extremely interested in the fate of their brethren in Europe as a strong attachment to the community of the United States is needed for a "neighbor policy" in a stronger religious among the young popu- sion of Jewish refugees in the past 12 years brought w an increased interest in traditional life, learning ar mutual responsibility. Immortality Is The Theme
Of The Yizkor Hour

At very birth a human begins his pilgrimage to the grave. None escapes death! Do you recall the well-known story, "Death Speaks"? The noted writer, Somerset Maugham, has of late popularized this story.

There was a merchant in Bagdad who sent his servant to market to buy provisions and in a little while the servant came back white and trembling and said: "Master, just now when I was in the market place I was jostled by a woman in the crowd and when I turned I saw it was death that jostled me. She looked at me and made a threatening gesture; now lend me your horse and I will ride away from this city and avoid my fate. I will go to Samaria. Death will not find me." The merchant lent him his horse and the servant mounted it and he dug his spurs in the flanks and as fast as the horse could gallop he went. Then the merchant went down to the market place, and saw Death standing in the crowd and said, "Why did you make a threatening gesture to my servant when you saw him this morning?" "That was not a threatening gesture. It was only a start of surprise. I was astonished to see him in Bagdad for I had an appointment with him to-night in Samaria."

How do we accept death when it enters our family circle? One of the great functions of religion is to give us courage and faith when the hour comes when we must separate from a beloved who has entered into his eternal sleep. Without the comfort of religion it is nigh impossible to endure this most heavy burden of sorrow and bereavement.

The solemn Yizkor hour has not only for its purpose the recalling of those who once spoke but are now silent, but it is also a reminder that we too will soon be but a memory. It reminds us of our mortal status. Alas, we so often forget this simple truth of our own mortality. In time of health and prosperity we grow so certain of ourselves, so proud of all we achieve. We accumulate possessions. We become powerful and intoxicated with success. But our gold and silver and all our attainments, all these come to naught when our heart beats no longer.

shall we be remembered? Will it be for good or evil? Will those we leave behind wish to remember us with gratitude? If we have been unkind, if we have hurt, we have certainly missed the opportunity to be remembered with thankfulness. Will you as father, be remembered not merely as the good provider but remembered because you walked with your sons and daughters hand in hand to God's house? Will you as mother, be recalled not merely as the person who was solicitous about the finery of your children's garments, but remembered lovingly as the giver of the home who on Sabbath and Holy Days offered thanks to the Almighty through the sacred act of blessing the Sabbath light? Alas, what memories of spiritual blessing we can prove to be if we choose, to our dear ones from whom we must ultimately take leave when our summons comes to enter the Yeshiba Shel Madaah.

This year the Yizkor hour possesses a wider and deeper meaning than any which we have known. Is there a family where death has not come? This tragic World War Two has been paid for in millions of lives, precious young promising lives. In this hour we name in our hearts especially the beloved youths of this Temple who made the supreme sacrifice in order that decency and human freedom may prevail on earth. May this hour of memorial bring consolation to the families of the heroic dead. With pride the surviving dear ones must come to realize that through the valour and courage of their heroic dead our world was redeemed from the evil of Nazism and Fascism which sought to enslave mankind. These heroic dead have given all, not in a selfish cause. They gave their lives in the cause of world redemption and the ideal of human freedom.

We, the living, must now carry on the fight for world democracy. We must now dedicate ourselves that these gallant dead shall not have died in vain. We must take up the fight so that the evil which they fought must never rise again. Of the heroic dead we say:

"They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old;

Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.

At the going down of the sun and in the morning

We will remember them."

We memorialize in this hour not only the soldier dead, those who gave their lives on the field of battle. We hold memorial this day for the millions of Israel who died the death of martyrs. "Al Eideinu Ha-Shem"! They who died for the faith and honour of Israel. We remember those who were starved, tortured and gassed by the enemy and who died by cruel, violent death in concentration camps. The enemy was resolved to exterminate the Jew. But, as throughout our history, he this lifted the sword against Israel in turn perished by the sword. Israel lives!

We who are here might have been in Belzen, in Wornow, in Buchenwald. But our brethren died in our stead. Their martyrdom in mind and eyes cherish their memory. It is incumbent upon us to renew our loyalty to the land and heritage of Israel and treasure the ideals of the Jewish people, that for which their lives were sacrificed.
